RESOURCE DESCRIPTION & ACCESS

- Cataloging code to replace AACR2
- Implemented by national libraries on March 31, 2013

RDA is designed...

...with the user in mind.

...to describe all types of resources.

...to make library data work better with other data on the Web.

RDA is based on FRBR (Functional Requirements for Bibliographic Records).

A large, stylized question mark is centered on a dark, textured background. The question mark is rendered in a light, almost white color, with a thick, rounded stroke. The background has a subtle gradient and a fine, grainy texture.

Why RDA?

The things we catalog have changed.

And they will continue to change.

GMD is Gone

GMD (General Material Designation) = bracketed information in the title that conveys the type of material

[electronic resource]

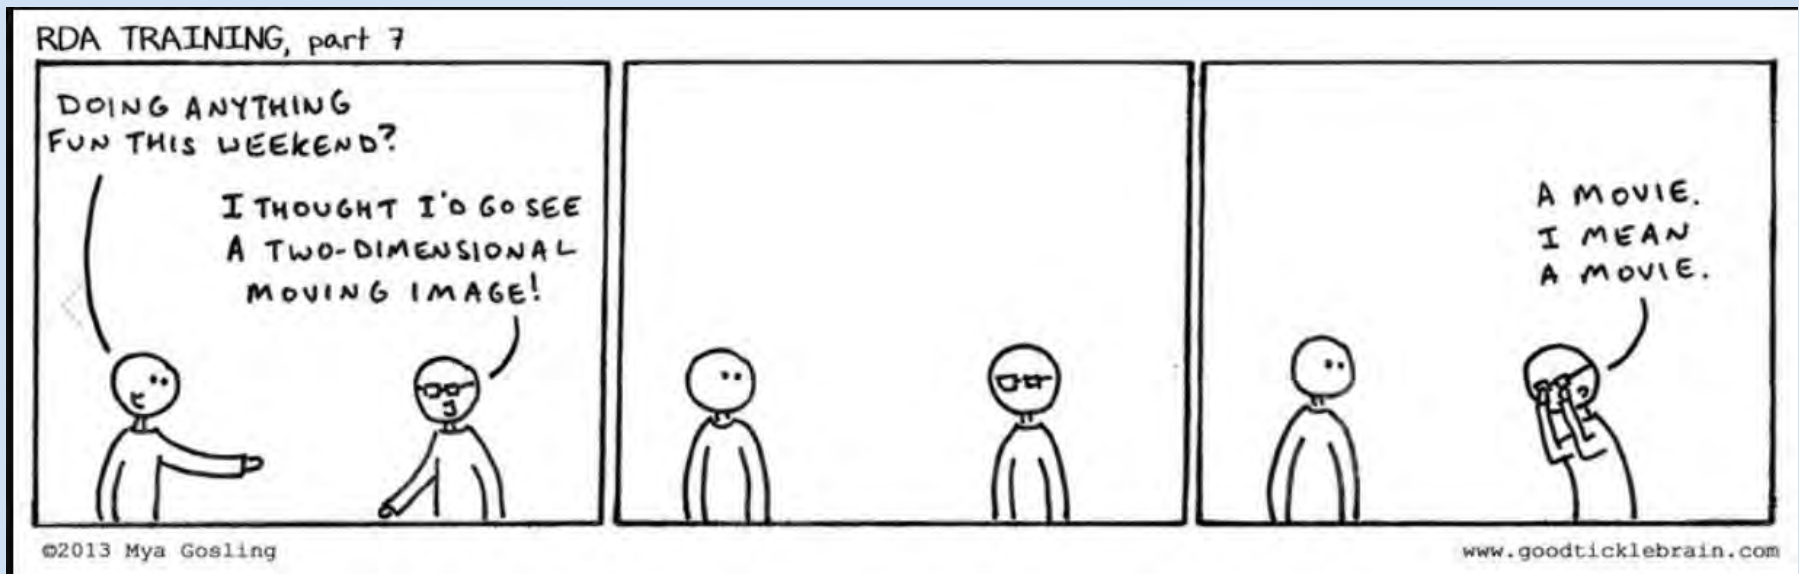

[sound recording]

[videorecording]

GMD is replaced by:

- Content type (text, performed music, spoken word, etc.)
- Media type (audio, microform, video, etc.)
- Carrier type (audio disc, online resource, videodisc, etc)

Terminology comes from lists in the RDA guidelines.

Index

Structure of RDA – General structure

Unlike AACR2, not organized by class of materials

Instead, arranged around user tasks to help users identify and relate resources

Each section begins with a chapter of general guidelines.

Subsequent chapters include instructions that support one of the user tasks

E.g. in Section 1:

- Chapter 1: General guidelines
- Chapter 2: FRBR task = Identify
- Chapter 3: FRBR task = Select

Structure of RDA – “Core-ness”

Based on attributes mandatory for a national level record

Defined at the element level

- Always
- “Core if” – situation described

Transcription

“Take what you see”

- Statement of responsibility
- Edition statement
- Publication information

Changes to Authority Headings

- Families can be creators or contributors in bib records
- Persons include fictitious entities and non-human entities

1. Dracula (1958) “FRBR-ized” Catalog Interfaces

Alternate Title: Horror of Dracula

Director: Fisher, Terence, 1904-1980

Language: English

Country: United Kingdom

Genres: Feature; Fiction; Horror;

Description: Jonathan Harker travels to Count Dracula's castle to act his librarian. Harker--actually there to try to kill Dracula--is first attacked by Dracula's female companion, then killed by the Count himself. Harker's friend, Dr Van Helsing, arrives to investigate his disappearance and swears to track the vampire down and to kill him by whatever means necessary. Voyaging to London, Dracula pursues Harker's fiancée Lucy and her sister Mina. Mina's husband Arthur Holmwood tries to assist Van Helsing, who doggedly stalks the vampire in hopes of defeating him.

Open Library as an Example

<http://www.openlibrary.org>

The screenshot shows a Firefox browser window displaying the Open Library website. The address bar shows the URL openlibrary.org/authors/OL21594A/Jane_Austen. The page features the Open Library logo and navigation links such as "SUBJECTS", "AUTHORS", "ADD A BOOK", "LISTS", "RECENTLY", and "ABOUT US". A search bar is visible with a "Search" button and a checkbox for "Show only eBooks".

The main content area is titled "Jane Austen" with the dates "December 16, 1775 - July 18, 1817". A paragraph of text describes her as an English writer who published anonymously, with her best-known works being Pride and Prejudice (1813) and Emma (1816). A quote from Virginia Woolf is included: "the most perfect artist among women."

Below the text, it states "741 works" with a link to "Add another?". There are three tabs for sorting: "Most Editions", "First Published", and "Most Recent". Three book entries are listed:

- Pride and Prejudice: 753 editions - first published in 1813. Includes a "Read" button.
- Sense and Sensibility: 155 editions - first published in 1811. Includes a "Read" button.
- Persuasion: 127 editions - first published in 1892. Includes a "Read" button.

On the right side, there is a portrait of Jane Austen and a "Manage Author Photos" link. Below the portrait, a "SUBJECTS" section lists various categories like "Fiction", "Social life and customs", "Accessible book", etc. An "Edit" button is also present, with the text "Last edited anonymously January 10, 2012 | History".

The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the system clock as 10:29 AM on 7/6/2012.

Linked Data/BIBFRAME

This technical site for the Bibliographic Framework Initiative (BIBFRAME.ORG) serves as the official repository for the vocabulary, tools and shared code in support of BIBFRAME. Led by the Library of Congress, this community effort represents the beginning of a transition from the MARC 21 communication format to a new RDF-based data model, embracing Linked Data practices in support of sharing and publishing metadata.

Background

The Library of Congress informational site presents a complete overview of the BIBFRAME initiative. Use this as a starting point to find important technical documents, vocabulary descriptions and conventions, and links to additional content from both sites.

Model & Vocabulary

The BIBFRAME Model is made up of high-level classes, or entities. A defined set of classes and properties make up the BIBFRAME Vocabulary. The vocabulary is now presented in three views: Model View, Category View, and List View.
